City of New York, Respondent, et al., Defendant
and Third-Party Plaintiff. Felix Industries, Inc., Third-Party Defendant-Respondent. (And Another Action.)

Court of Appeals of New York

Decided May 3, 2007

CITE TITLE AS: Pavlou v City of New York

SUMMARY

Appeal, by permission of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the First Judicial Department, from an order of that Court, entered June 23, 2005. The Appellate Division, with two Justices dissenting, (1) reversed, on the law, an order of the Supreme Court, New York County (Jane Solomon, J.), which had granted plaintiffs' motion pursuant to CPLR 4404 (a) for a new trial on defendant City's statutory liability under Labor Law § 241 (6), (2) denied plaintiffs' motion, (3) reinstated that part of the jury verdict and (4) remanded for further proceedings. The following question was certified by the Appellate Division: "Was the order of this Court, which reversed the order of Supreme Court, properly made?"

Pavlou v City of New York, 21 AD3d 74, affirmed.

HEADNOTE

Labor

Safe Place to Work

In a personal injury action arising from the collapse of a crane on a construction site, wherein the jury found that the proximate cause of the injury was a preexisting crack in the crane, which made it unsafe to operate the crane with any load, not the negligent operation of the crane with an excess load in violation of the Industrial Code, the Appellate Division properly reversed Supreme Court's order granting plaintiff a new trial on defendant City's statutory liability under the Labor Law. The jury's finding that the collapse was caused by the defective crane and not the load size was supported by record evidence. Based on the proof, issues of negligence and causation were not inextricably interwoven and the jury verdict, which did not apportion any liability to defendant City, was not inconsistent. Since the Appellate Division did not abuse its discretion, further consideration was beyond the Court of Appeals review power. In this procedural context, the Court of Appeals could not review a prior nonfinal Appellate Division order dismissing another Labor Law cause of action.

OPINION OF THE COURT

Memorandum.

The order of the Appellate Division should be affirmed, with costs, and the certified question answered in the affirmative.

In this personal injury case arising from the collapse of a crane on a construction site, the jury

8 N.Y.3d 961

(Cite as: 8 N.Y.3d 961, 868 N.E.2d 186)

found that the operation of the crane with an excess load, in violation of Industrial Code (12 NYCRR) § 23-8.2 (g) (2) (iii), amounted to negligence but that this was not a proximate **2 cause of the injury suffered by plaintiff. Experts testified at trial that the crane had a preexisting crack that made it unsafe to operate with any load. The *963 jury's finding that the collapse was caused by the defect in the crane, and not the size of the load, was therefore supported by record evidence. Based on the proof, issues of negligence and causation were not inextricably interwoven in this case and the jury verdict, which did not apportion any liability to the City of New York, was not inconsistent (cf. Marine Midland Bank v Russo Produce Co., 50 NY2d 31, 41 [1980]). Because the Appellate Division did not abuse its discretion when it reversed Supreme Court's order granting a new trial, further consideration of plaintiffs' arguments is beyond our review power (see Levo v Greenwald, 66 NY2d 962, 963 [1985]). Finally, in this procedural context, this Court may not review the December 2002 nonfinal Appellate Division order (300 AD2d 120 [2002]) on this appeal from the June 2005 order (see Weinberg v Hertz Corp., 69 NY2d 979, 981 [1987]; CPLR 5713, 5501 [a] [1]).

Chief Judge Kaye and Judges Ciparick, Graffeo, Read, Smith, Pigott and Jones concur in memorandum.

On review of submissions pursuant to section 500.11 of the Rules of the Court of Appeals (22 NYCRR 500.11), order affirmed, etc.
